Lesage, Robertson fail to arrive at solution

Marilyn Mirabelli acclaimed in WU

Marilyn Mirabelli has been acclaimed president of the Women's Union.

Mirabelli, a second year Arts student, has been involved in many WU activities, and was co-chairman of Shoeshine Day.

Eleven candidates have been nominated for the other WU positions.

Running for Internal Vice-President are Diane Richer and Joanne Willis. The nominees for Resident Representative are Susan Black, Jill Gardiner, and Martha Plaine.

Cheryl Buckland, Jane Eversfield, and Marlene Shatsky are contesting the position of WU secretary. Nominated for member-at-large are Susan Krug, Lynne Primrose, and Cathy Russell.

The elections will be held on March 2.

Dr. H. Locke Robertson has returned to Montreal following a meeting with Premier Jean Lesage in Quebec City yesterday. The Principal was promised another meeting with Lesage next Monday, but received no commitment that McGill's request for a $3.5 million increase in government grants would be accepted.

The Lesage government has offered McGill $98,000 in increased grants.

The five-man McGill delegation met for almost 90 minutes with the Premier. The only conclusive development was the scheduling of another set of talks.

The next meeting will bring together Deputy Finance Minister Marcel Casavan and McGill representatives.

A joint communique issued by Dr. Robertson and Premier Lesage said the approaching meeting would "determine if it is correct that McGill University cannot furnish the necessary services of higher education with the funds at its disposal and in the same way as other Quebec universities."

PREMIER LESAGE
Maybe...

Reports from Quebec City said neither the Principal nor the Premier would comment further on the progress of the talks.

"I have no comment on the discussion we had," Lesage was quoted as saying.

"I have nothing to say except that we had a very constructive discussion," Dr. Robertson reportedly said.

Meanwhile, the Union Générale des Etudiants du Québec has criticised the Premier for "weakness" in defending the distribution of university grants. UGEQ said it approved the $9 million increase in allotments and McGill's $98,000 share.

In a telegram to Lesage, the UGEQ executive asked that grants continue to be distributed in the same proportion until French-language universities reach the same level as McGill.

French-language universities were inferior to English-language institutions, UGEQ said. There was no discrimination in the doling out of grants.

In the McGill delegation were Chancellor Howard I. Ross, Dean Maxwell Cohen of the Law Faculty, Dean Nesbitt, a university governor, and George Grimson, executive assistant to Dr. Robertson.

Dr. Robertson said the original McGill request amounted to an increase of nearly $3.5 million over last year's total. This was cut to $98,000 by a special committee in charge of university grants and by the government.

Dr. Robertson said he had not been informed at which stage the cut was made.

Lesage, meanwhile, told newsmen that the delegation came to

DR. ROBERTSON
...next week

Quebec City at his invitation and not as a pressure group. He said the meeting was "cordial".

Under the University Investments Financing Act, the province has made available $44.5 million to Quebec's six universities, an increase of some $9 million over last year.

L'Université de Montréal received $16,657,000, an increase of $3 million; Laval received $13,268,000, an increase of $3 million; Sir George Williams University's share was upped by $1.9 million to $3,009,000.

Action against Daily requested

Council to discuss Ferro letter

Maximilian Ferro, in an open letter to the Students' Council, has requested the SC to "consider appropriate action" concerning an article that appeared in last Thursday's Daily.

The Council meets tonight at 7 pm in the Board Room to discuss this and other matters.

In the letter, dated last Friday, Ferro denied a statement in the story, entitled "The Flint-eyed Heroes", that he had contact with the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale. He also protested "allegations made by the McGill Daily that I am anti-French Canadian, anti-Jewish or a supporter of the Far Right".

In a separate letter yesterday to Daily editor Patrick MacFadden, Ferro demanded a full retraction in print within 48 hours.

Ferro signed a sworn statement denying the RIN contact and several assertions made in the story, which his letter termed "malicious and libelous".

Also scheduled for discussion at tonight's Council meeting is the question of the distribution of handbills in the current Students' Society election campaign. During last year's SC election campaign, the Council deleted the electoral by-law prohibiting handbills, which were distributed for the first time.

Other matters on the agenda are the joint meeting with the Senate, scheduled for Wednesday, and the provincial government grant to the university.

LETTER TO SC

The following is the text of Maximilian Ferro's letter to the Students' Council:

In view of the fact that a malicious and libelous article was printed in the McGill Daily of February 17th, attacking my character and reputation through deliberate falsehood, I sincerely hope that Council will consider appropriate action on my behalf.

Printed shortly before an election in which I will be a candidate, the article in question has sought to identify me as the leader of the Extreme Right, as anti-French Canadian, anti-Semitic through association with the RIN, and has implicated me in a variety of dishonest political dealings.

I submit to Council that the entire tone and content of this article are so absurd as to be a disgrace to all those who have permitted it to be published, and feel justified in demanding a full and unqualified apology, in print, from the McGill Daily.

I submit, here enclosed, a sworn statement, which I have signed before a Commissioner of the Superior Court, District of Montreal, as legal proof of my denial of specific accusations printed in the Daily article in question.

I further protest to Council the allegations made by the McGill Daily that I am anti-French, anti-Jewish, or a supporter of the Far Right, and would appreciate a fair hearing and confrontation with Mr. MacFadden on these issues.

Finally, I am much distressed by this whole matter and earnestly hope that Council will decide to take a strong hand in order to avoid the most distasteful necessity for legal action.

STATEMENT

The following is the text of the statement sworn by Maximilian Ferro before Virginia Cameron, Commissioner of the Superior Court, District of Montreal:

I, the undersigned, solemnly swear that in direct contradiction to statements and allegations made about me in the McGill Daily of Thursday, February 17th, 1966:

1) I have no connection whatever with the Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale,

Canada Month appears

Large stacks of a back issue of Canada Month hit the campus yesterday, as the magazine whose "unremitting cause is personal liberty" sought to disprove Daily allegations concerning its relations with Resistance.

Each copy of the publication contained a mimeographed letter addressed to the editor of the McGill Daily. The letter claimed that all references except one to Canada Month in an article, "The Flint-Eyed Heroes", were factually incorrect.

A stack of the glossy cover magazines that appeared in the Union lobby yesterday morning was gone by 10 am.

The inserted letter stated that Canada Month had in fact permitted Resistance to be printed with their equipment. The job was done at the "expense" of Resistance, but they used the equipment without charge.

The letter also denied that Canada Month was "Far Right" or that it was financed by sources other than "readers and advertisers".

Signs above the give-away copies read, "As Mis-advertised in McGill Daily: you've seen the campus editor's judgement of Canada Month. Take away a free sample copy and form your own judgement."

Child who's got his own

We'll be waiting to see next Monday how Dr. Robertson fares in his second confrontation with the vanguard of the Quiet Revolution in two days.

Regardless of who finally milks who, the need for a new kind of political realism in the upper reaches of Dawson Hall is evident from the fact that the issue came to a head in the first place.

The fact is that McGill's present student body — where they come from and where they go — just doesn't fit in to Premier Lesage's plans for this province.

It may well be that proportionally McGill is getting screwed as opposed to the French speaking universities. It may also be true that the Government has not followed the guidelines it accepted earlier from an advisory committee. When you have your hand on the purse strings such injustices can be borne.

The point that looms large in Quebec City is the ratio of French degree holders to English. The plain old population ratio doesn't agree with this one.

This university has to realize that it is no longer a private institution, in terms of its sources of revenue and its responsibility to the province as a whole. Just where the concessions will come from is hard to say. But a few more French names in the student directory wouldn't hurt. On the student's side, alignment with UGEQ becomes an inevitability.

Operating from a position of weakness perhaps, but the more piping the government boys do, the more often they're going to want to call the tune.

One thing the good Premier has to remember is that if he bleeds this place dry too slowly, and in terms of dollars and cents, a potentially great centre of learning for a revitalized Quebec will be a slag heap. That won't help anybody.

Our Equipment

Dear Sir:

I would not presume to query the tone or accuracy of most of the article, "The Flint-Eyed Heroes", in your February 17 issue. But I would like the opportunity to correct your references to CANADA MONTH, all but one of which are factually wrong. (You were right when you said "CANADA MONTH continues to appear...")

You label us "the journal of the Far Right". As I understand the term "Far Right", it is wrongly used about CANADA MONTH. Fascism carried that description; Fascism was a sort of nationalistic statism, in which a central autocracy ruled over the private lives and the private enterprises of the citizens. Nazism was described as "Far Right". Nazism likewise was totalitarian, statist, dictatorial; it was also racist.

But CANADA MONTH is deeply and wholly opposed to totalitarianism, to dictatorship and to racism, whether — like Fascism and Nazism — it comes from the Right or — like Communism — from the Left. For years our masthead has carried this statement: "Because we believe that the strongest force for good in the world is the free and responsible individual CANADA MONTH's unremitting cause is personal liberty, guaranteed by responsibility on the part of those who enjoy it."

If this is the cause of the Far Right, then CANADA MONTH could be called a journal of the Far Right. It would be truer to say, though, that we advocate what was once the liberal cause and is now the conservative cause. You do yourself and your readers no service by misapplying political terms.

You say that "Resistance" is printed by CANADA MONTH. The two issues of "Resistance" that we know about were set in type and printed by "Resistance" staff at their own expense. They used our equipment, for which we didn't charge them. We have said that we will extend the same small facilities to any campus group that isn't totalitarian or pornographic, as long as it doesn't disturb our production schedules.

The financing of CANADA MONTH is not the mystery you seem to think it, though some people regard it as a kind of miracle. Our expenditures match our revenues, and these revenues come, in not quite equal proportions, from the subscription and newsstand payments of our readers and from our advertisers.

You state that our advertisements "often come from American firms, many of them known as Goldwater supporters." Literally speaking, we have never had an advertisement from an American firm. We have had ads from Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms, but in no such case are we aware that the subsidiary or the parent firm supported Goldwater. Not that we would object, mind you; we have had ads from firms whose officers support all sorts of causes. But what you say is not true.

CANADA MONTH is published by Canada Week Limited, whose president is Daniel E. Woodward (not "C.K. Woodward", as you state). If Resistance goes to press bearing slogans such as: "To C.K. with best wishes from all the boys at Resistance," as you write, the good wishes are not for him, or for anyone else I know. You describe Woodward as an American; he has been a Canadian resident for most of his life, and took Canadian citizenship before CANADA MONTH ever was launched.

Wayne Kines (not "Terry Kines") was on staff here, but cannot be called "an ex-editor", as he was not in the editorial department; for all his virtues, he never did contribute to editorial policy or content.

Our "Campus" column was started in December 1964 and suspended in January this year. Is that, as you state, "timed to meet the new leftist activism"? Rather, it was an attempt to throw a small spotlight on the whole range of student affairs.

To correct the last handful of implications in your article, let me state flatly that we are not financed by the Social Credit Party, Moral Re-Armament, or Goldwater Republicans. We sometimes think it would be nice to have some bottomless pit of secret funds to draw on, but the plain fact is that our revenue comes, as I have said, from not-at-all-secret readers and advertisers. Any mystification about CANADA MONTH is in your mind, not in the openly available facts.

Editor

Manana, Manana

Dear Sir:

I sometimes wonder about the efficacy of the Student Council regarding the co-ordination of campus activities.

Today, the 17th of February, there appears in the Daily a frantic last minute plea to find a chairman for Convocation '68. It seems to me that when I filled in my application late last October, I was doing so within seconds of the deadline. About two weeks after I had filed this application, I received a phone call from one Bob Skanes asking that if I wouldn't mind, would I please write and say when I might be free for an interview with the Executive Applications Committee. With trembling hand, my very best penmanship and my best notepaper, I did as I was asked. That was the end! So with a heavy heart I accepted the fact, after another two or three weeks of fruitless waiting, that I was obviously not the right ethnic group to be worthy to chair such a committee, and threw myself into other activities to compensate for this great loss and to otherwise occupy my Christmas vacation.

Sometime at the end of January, I received another phone call from a mumbled name who said that they had my application for chairman of Convocation '68. Hooray, goody-goody-gum-drops, etc., etc., it did not get lost among all the invalidated UGEQ ballots! He seemed to ignore this and asked when I could come down for an interview. "So sorry", said I, "If I start that sort of thing now I shall fail and then I won't be able to go to Convocation at all; anyway why did you take such a long time to decide that you wanted to speak to me about it?"

"Marf, buff, cackle, squeak, barf, waffle, and Well, if it's any consolation, you're the only applicant," said he.

So you see, sir, the powers that be are so busy striking, and sitting and marching and teaching that they almost forgot that they had very close to two thousand students graduating from McGill this spring who would like a) a convocation to attend and b) some of whom might conceivably want to go to a Convocation Ball and a few other bourgeois things like that. At the end of February, where and how will one be able to find the facilities and speakers, etc. to accomplish this mammoth task that should have been begun before Christmas?

Maybe we who like the sort of activity, like Convocation, etc. are petty; maybe we are selfish, bourgeois lacking in true empathy with the sorrows, burdens, etc., etc., of mankind but we do exist, and as "the other half" we should have our right to our celebration at the end of our four years here if only because we had to put up with the dirty-unwashed for four years. What will we end up doing? Shall we have our Convocation exercises at the American Embassy or the plaza on the Place Ville Marie? Shall we have the Convocation Ball around the La Grenade Shoe Factory or, as now seems probable, shall we just not bother and have McGill mail us the diplomas?

Dear Sir:

I am truly disappointed for not having been included in your compilation of McGill's Most Wanted Men, The Flint Eyed Heroes. Because I did not bear the brunt of your distorted invective, I feel that I have failed somewhere. I shall hang my head in shame, scourge myself with birch-rods (from the tree, not the Society,) and snivel off into the night. Although ignominiously doomed to anonymity, I wish to thank you; you have been a great boon to the Conservative cause.

Engineers aim for 600 pints

The Engineers have challenged students of all other faculties to a blood-letting contest.

The 1966 EUS Blood Drive will be the Engineers' final opportunity this year to avenge their defeat in the competition for the Clot, which goes to the faculty with the highest percentage of bleeding students in the annual October campus-wide bloodbath. The Plumbers were bested by the Faculty of Arts & Science, with 40.2% of the Artsmen bleeding.

The clinic will be held in the McConnell Engineering Building Common Room on Thursday from 10 am to 6 pm. The Engineering Princesses will be present to make bleeding easier. Free coffee, soft drinks and doughnuts will be served to donors.

Subscriptions to Time and Playboy Magazines will be offered as door prizes.

Blood Drive officials emphasize that the average healthy person can give blood once every three months, thus enabling those who bled in October to open their veins again.

The co-chairmen of the EUS Blood Drive, Ernie Smith and Howard Stotland, stressed the urgent need for blood. The clinic has only one day in which to meet its 600-pint objective.

Smith remarked that "bleeding relieves tensions" and added that "it's that period again, you know."

WHAT'S WHAT

Instant Theatre

The Players' Club's Instant Theatre will perform two short plays next Monday.

The two plays were written by Jules Feiffer, noted cartoonist, and adapted and directed by John Lazarus.

The first play, entitled "George's Moon", is a tale of the only man on the moon, who spends his time in self-analysis. The second play, "Sex Is Dirty", is about a boy, a girl, and a bed.

The casts of the two comedies include Tony Hillyer as George, Rod Symington as the Narrator, John Lazarus as the Boy, Anne Henderson as the Girl and a bed portraying itself.

The first play begins at 1:15 pm. Admission is free.

Bridge Tourney

The McGill Bridge Team has won the Toronto Telegram Trophy for inter-collegiate team-of-four bridge.

The team of Howie Caplow, Mike Benedict, Steve Caplan and Otto Kokish was tied for the lead with McGill's heavily favoured team of Shuster, Shuster, Shuster and Baran, but pulled ahead as the latter finished third in the second session.

Other universities represented were U. of T. Western, Dartmouth, Waterloo, Bishop's and Sir George Williams. Next year, the tournament will be held at Western.

Revitalized hockey Redmen face seventh-place Carabins tonight

The revitalized hockey Redmen, riding on the crest of a three-game unbeaten streak, meet the U de M Carabins tonight at the new Université de Montréal stadium complex.

On Saturday, Carabins moved ahead of Redmen into seventh place in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League on the strength of their 6-1 win over cellar-dwelling Guelph. Both teams have now played thirteen games.

Redmen are counting on a continuation of their solid play in recent outings. They have won two of their last three although the Birks Trophy win on Thursday night is not official for league standings. Two weeks ago the club downed Queen's 6-3 and last weekend they played to a 3-3 sawoff with Guelph.

Tighter defence

An explanation for the improved showing of late can be given in two words — improved defence. The blueline corps, often lagging at the beginning of the year, has come on strong of late and has given the squad the much needed boost on defence. The poor start by the defence is not hard to figure out considering that it was the first time the players had lined up with each other. Adjusting to the rugged hockey played in the SIHL may also have had its effects.

Coach Dave Copp is also lavish in his praise about the play of two veteran forwards, Bert Halliwell and Rick Moore. Both players have been disappointments most of the year but have sparkled in the last few games to lead the Redmen rebound.

"Moore and Halliwell are doing a great job", says Copp, "especially in penalty-killing."

In their two previous meetings this year, Redmen have skated to 4-3 and 5-2 decisions. Both wins have come on home ice and Redmen will not have that advantage tonight. It will take another crisp performance if Redmen are to move ahead of Carabins in the league standings.
